

Communication to plan members

March: Fraud Prevention Month

Are you aware that fraud also exists in group insurance and that, like a certain virus and its variants, it is spreading rapidly? And who pays the price? Well, everyone, of course! Your insurer, your plan sponsor, you and your family members.

You may think that there are no "real" victims of fraud, but think again. Group insurance fraud losses put undue pressure on plans and can result in higher premiums and reduced coverage.

Fortunately, we have a solution: you, us, everyone together, we can fight fraud. By reporting suspicious behaviour, by refusing to be fooled by scam artists, we can reduce fraud and contribute to the long-term viability of group insurance plans.

So don't just sit back, become an anti-fraud hero!

Want to learn more about the consequences of group insurance fraud, what insurers are doing about it and what you can do to stop it? Visit fraudisfraud.ca.

You can also consult the document Better understanding and preventing insurance fraud.